Portfolio

yulim song

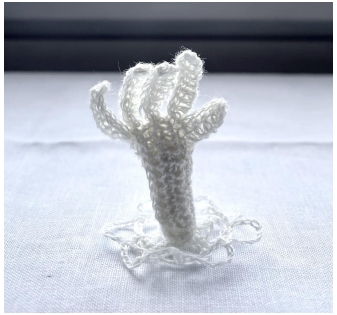

so@yulimsong.net | yulimsong.net

hold hands

The Hold Hands series breathes new life into my previous Hand series (Hold Hands 2009). During my time in Rauma, inspired by community-based knitting projects and the traditional craft of bobbin lace, I created these pieces to condense and express the infinite possibilities, stories, and meanings held within the human hand. By emphasizing small, intricate details, these works invite the viewer to listen closely to an intimate and calm voice.

hold hands 2009

hold hands 2026

hold hands_ knitted linen thread_2026

hold hands_knitted and bobbin-laced metallic thread, glass_2026

hold hands on a local community community-based knitting projects_ hold hands_collected gloves and mittens from local knitting groups_2026

hold hands on the garden & forest hold hands_knitted cotton & linen, glass_installation view and sketch_2026

nightly . (dot)

The first series of 'nightly.' was made in 2019 at Seoul, South Korea.
It is a symbolic diary of a dark and calm mind of my own.
The series of work has three different materials and forms such as pencil on paper, embroidery on silk, knitting with paper and linen yarn.
And they are all based on a time consuming process.
So I would like to call them traces that contain passing time such as time-lapse.

.

nightly.
embroidery on silk_various dimension_2019

nightly.
pencil on paper, copper frame, glass_2019

nightly.
knitting with paper & linen yarn, brass clip_installation view in Instant Roof_2019